The Patent Pending Technology Allows Citizens With Information to Report to Law Enforcement Agencies Through a Third Party and Guaranty to Remain Anonymous

SCOTTSDALE, AZ--(MARKET WIRE)--Oct 11, 2007 -- The Suggestion Box, Inc., (Other OTC:SGTB.PK - News) dba www.TheAnonymousEmail.com, announces that it has officially launched its anonymous reporting system for all law enforcement agencies. Using its anonymous email capability, considered the most advanced anonymous technology system available, its patent pending SMS (Short Message Service) system and its patent pending anonymous chat rooms, law enforcement agencies now have the capability to correspond back and forth with citizens willing to pass on information as long as they are guaranteed anonymity. The anonymous SMS system allows subscribers to send anonymous text messages to cell phones and other text message receivers. The patent filing covers TheSuggestionBox's advanced technology that allows text message recipients to reply back to the anonymous sender, and still maintain the sender's anonymity. The patent pending anonymous chat rooms allow persons to sign in to a chat with law enforcement, but to remain completely anonymous.

Presently, there are several law enforcement agencies that have been testing the system with great success. During its test phase, the company has had pedophiles reported and apprehended as well as corporate theft, sexual harassment in the workplace and bullying in schoolyards reported. The company is inviting all enforcement agencies to sign up at no cost and test the system out. Recently, the Boston Police have been using an SMS (text messaging) system and have been getting great results from teenagers reporting crimes directly to them. However, the patent pending system being offered by www.TheAnonymousEmail.com has many more features and offers many additional ways for people to anonymously report crime other than just the text messaging.
